OUR ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

From St. Paul to New Orleans and Dauphin Island—In Winter.

STRAHER (DAUPHIN ISLAND, at anchor) of Dauphin Island, March 6, 1895.

Dear Press:

It is a novel and interesting experience to travel rapidly in winter from the high latitude of St. Paul to the tropical regions of the Gulf of Mexico. One leaves winter on his icy throne—earth wrapped in its ermine robe of snow—to find here, after traversing fifty degrees of latitude, the gentle reign of spring, garlanded with flowers—the soft air of summer—the vegetation of the tropics—the fabled leaves of the magnolia, and the fruit of the orange hang on its native stem.

To those who have never before visited so far South—truly the "Sunny South"—there is much noteworthy. The great river that washes the feet of our apostolic city—in humble imitation of the blessed master—here rolls his flood in majestic volume, wide-spreading and profound. What a river! Two thousand miles of uninterrupted navigable water! and still beyond the great falls, leagues of river that floats the wealth of our pineries to the busy wheels and saws of its leaping waters. Who can measure the miles of its great arms, stretching from the Alleghany to the Rocky mountains, and its hundred tributaries from Texas to the Balise? Truly a river commensurate with the magnitude, the capabilities, and the destiny of the great valley that cradles it. No traitor blood shall blind it. God hath set his sign to the charter of its liberty, and forever it shall flow untroubled to the sea. Nor shall the shadow of a slave ever darken its tide. Rejoice O lover of Liberty, that God reigns and rules the passions of men to His all-beneficent purposes.

But I am to write you of what the eyes see of nature and art in this tropical land, that will interest your readers. The Mississippi, from the mouth of Red River to New Orleans, is lined on either bank with great sugar plantations, which, with the large sugar houses, and innumerable cabins of the negroes, and the palatial dwellings of the owners, look like New England factory villages. You are never out of sight of these; so that for hundreds of miles the lands bordering the river present the appearance of a succession of villages. Everywhere the mighty flood of the Father of Waters is restrained by levees which rise to the height of the second floor of houses built on the natural ground behind them. In fact the land slopes away from the river, rising all our northern sides of land bordering rivers. The deposits of the muddy current during thousands of years has built up a causeway on which the waters travel over this low country to the sea.

This region of sugar plantations is very picturesque. The lands are thoroughly cleared and improved from the river bank, two or three, or five miles, at which distance the plantations are bounded by the primeval forest of cypress with its heavy funeral drapery of moss. Here and there, by accident, or the aesthetic taste of the planter, patches of the old forest stand on the river's brink. About the dwellings of the planters, fine park-like grounds, profusely ornamented with the beautiful trees and shrubs of the tropic groves of live oak, magnolia and orange relieve the landscape. Altogether it is a scene of wealth, nature and art rarely elsewhere equalled. The great river, serpentine as a meadow brook, winding and doubling back among these plantations brimming up to its levee-line and seen like a lake across and beyond its bends, glimmering in the sunlight through the rich foliage of the groves, completes the picture of magnificent beauty.

New Orleans, to a Northern man, is a foreign city. It is so unlike any Northern city. Its people have strange and foreign looks, of every hue from snowy-white to sordid, and speak strange tongues. Its yards and gardens are full of strange trees, shrubs and flowers, rich in their sunny wealth of leaf and bloom. The China tree, the magnolia, the myrtle, the wild peach, the palmetto, the date, the fig tree, the orange and the banana, are all strange and foreign to Northern eyes. The habits of the great Southern metropolis are foreign. Yesterday (Sunday) we marched through the city, seeing the market places open and crowded with people, shops of merchandise open, and places of amusement in the full tide of activity. Surely this is not the land of the Parian!

I trespass on your space if I should undertake to describe all that engrosses and interests the eye of a stranger, even though he be occupied, and hurrying on.

A few days in camp near the ever memorable 8th of January, 1815, battle ground—an order received in the night to embark part of the brigade on an ocean steamer, to go around by the mouth of the Mississippi—to move the remainder soon after daylight, to Lake Pontchartrain, thence to embark for Dauphin Island, the execution of these orders—the march along the levee, past the equestrian statue of General Jackson, with the inscription so appropriate to the times, "The Union must and shall be preserved"—Up Canal street past the statue of Henry Clay, with banners flying, and martial bands playing, and crowds gazing out on the famous shell road, where fast horses, and faster men and women are driving to Lake Pontchartrain, and aboard the steamers thence across the Lake—past Fort Pike, that fires a gun across our bows, and sends an officer aboard—through the Rigolets, and to-day coasting along among the bays and islands of this shore, past Christian and Biloxi to the left, Cat and Ship Island to the right—eight fugitive negroes taken off a light-house, five miles from the land, whence they had

THE PASSAGE OF THE CATAWBA BY THE 14TH CORPS.

I have only alluded briefly to the troubles of the 14th Corps, and have generally left it to the correspondent with the column to report its march; but I cannot refrain from giving an incident of its passage of the Catawba. You will remember that, for two or three days, the swollen state of the Catawba prevented the 14th from crossing, and that the right wing was cut in two. The delay thus caused to one corps of course extended to the whole army. Sherman at last got impatient and disgusted, and on March 1st, ordered Slocum to order that portion of the 14th Corps which was cut off to destroy the wagon, and come on, and then the miles and horses, ferry the men across on rafts, and come on. The army was now twenty miles in advance. General Slocum back to the Catawba, and the market house stands a well-kept metallic effigy, ten feet high, of King Hagar, a famous chieftain of the Catawba.

A SLAVE PLOT.

The slaves around Laurensburg at the opening of our campaign through Carolina, had been long and patiently waiting for their way to our line. The plot was discovered, and at one of their meetings they were captured, and after a kind of mock trial, twenty-five were hung. Captain Robert Johnson, the chief of the militia, was the leader in this barbarous business.

A ROMANCE.

Of Fayetteville I have spoken sufficiently in my former dispatch. It is a poor straggling kind of a town, with few buildings of any importance.

It is at the head of Cape Fear River, which gives it some importance. It is a place of some historic importance during the revolutionary war, as also, during the war of 1861-62, when the celebrated Florida McDonald, whose name has been so poetically associated with the outlaws and sufferings of the last hope of the South—the so-called Charles Edward.

With a woman's tact and tenderness, the faithful maid shielded the unfortunate Charles Edward from the eyes of the world, and in the end, she was rewarded for her fidelity. I hope we will meet again in the Palace of the future, where she will be a monarch of a great repaying his gratitude. In 1775, she and her husband were called for America, setting in Fayetteville, the old home of the house of the late Charles Edward.

The troubles of the Revolution followed. The chief of the militia, McDonald, was accepted the commission of General, from George III, his kinsman in Carolina, joined his standard as Captain, but was captured by the British at Cross Creek, and detained a prisoner for some time. After his release, broken down in hope and fortune, he and his wife returned to Fayetteville, where he died in 1790. Her shroud was made of sheets in which Charles Edward had slept at King's.

Fayetteville, remarks that Massachusetts had had her Lady Arabella, Virginia her Pocahontas, and North Carolina her Flora McDonald.

THE WHITE SLAVE.

The famous white slave came into our lines this morning, and reported to Gen. Logan. His name is James Le Ross, of French descent, by his father. His great-grandmother was a pretty Indian girl, and he was a white slave, and was sold to a Mr. Western, of Charleston, who had a daughter by her. The latter was the mother of our slave, and kept in servitude her half-sister, a Mrs. Smith, who afterwards sold both mother and child to a Southern trader, who sold them over the country. This man was about forty years of age, slight build, long, sandy hair and whiskers, evidently without a particle of African blood in his veins; yet he was the bondman of his kinman.

THE HOME OF SIMMS THE NOVELIST.

At Woodlands, about one mile south of Midway, is the residence of the author of the "Mardi," Mr. Simms. It is an old-fashioned, unfinished brick building, with massive, ungainly pillars. It is a strange, castellated appearance, with something of the weird look of a castle.

Our skirmishers and foragers paid a hasty visit to Mr. Simms' place, and all their attentions, condiments, etc., but I could not help remarking to myself while Mr. Simms was writing, that he resembled one of Dickens' characters, because he was "all-of-a-twist" (Oliver Twist.) A very naughty joke to perpetrate just as a fellow mortal was clinging to the last tie that bound him to earth. Perhaps an appropriate epithet would be "Mr. Simms' don't Thursday."

Artemus Ward has been with us for some days, debuting his brilliant humorists to Carolina—subject of his "piece"—Life among the Mormons. Artemus is irresistibly funny, and his delicate morsels of wit, snack of pure originality.

FLOODING A MARK-THROWER.

Some of our men, captured by negroes and prisoners, paid a visit to a noted pack bloodhound for the purpose of hunting down negroes and escaped prisoners. The boys disposed of the dogs as they have done with all the bloodhounds they came across, hurled down his house and place, and tied him to a tree, and got some strapping negroes to fog him, which they did with a will, repaying the loss of the dog.

CAMPDEN.

A beautiful town, situated on the Wateree river, which is navigable for boats of light draught, and is about thirty-five miles east of Columbia, and one hundred and forty miles from Charleston. It has some very pretty private residences and appears to be a very healthy and fashionable resort. It is also a place of considerable historic interest. In August, 1780, a battle was fought here between the British and the American General Gates, and the British under Lord Cornwallis; and another was fought in 1781, when the British under Cornwallis, now called Kirkwood, where we skirmished, between General Green and Lord Rawdon. A monument stands here to the memory of the battle, which fell in the former battle. The foundation stone was laid in 1825, by Lafayette.

The market house stands a well-kept metallic effigy, ten feet high, of King Hagar, a famous chieftain of the Catawba.

The Copperhead Ticket Elected.

The Fifth Ward True-Becker Defeated.

With mingled feelings of shame and indignation we are compelled to announce that the Copperhead ticket was elected in St. Paul yesterday.

The result was the same with the ward tickets, with few exceptions. To the honor of the Fifth Ward it is said that Geo. L. Becker was not elected to the City Council. His competitor, R. H. Fitz received seventeen majority. Another exception is the election of D. D. Merrill, the Union candidate for School Inspector in the First Ward.

There was no opposition to the Democratic candidate for Street Commissioner. In the Fifth Ward both parties supported Mr. Prescott, who is a Union man, for School Inspector. In the Third Ward the Union men made the same nomination for Alderman that the Democrats did. The same course was pursued in the Fourth Ward in relation to School Inspector.

The following is the ticket chosen:

Mayor—JOHN S. PRINCE.
City Attorney—J. V. D. HEARD.

THE RICHMOND CELEBRATION.

It is Postponed until Saturday.

Particulars of the Arrangements Made.

Agreeable to the call of Gen. Sibley, which we published yesterday morning, the committee appointed at the February meeting assembled at the Court House during the forenoon, to make arrangements to celebrate the capture of Richmond.

Gen. Sibley stated the object of the meeting to be to prepare for the celebration to-day (Wednesday).

Mr. Williams, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, said that in behalf of the firemen he would ask a postponement of the celebration until Saturday.

If it was decided to go forward, immediately the Department would be compelled to ask to be excused from having charge of the procession, as they could not in so short a time prepare for a creditable display. He thought they might be ready by Friday, if it was deemed advisable to hold it on that day.

Mr. Pond moved to postpone the celebration to Saturday.

Mr. Brisson thought it would be better to leave from some of the other committee before deciding upon this matter. He wished to know how the Finance Committee were progressing.

Mr. Jagersoll said a subscription paper had been in circulation, and from the encouragement already received he thought there would be no difficulty in raising funds.

Mr. Brisson thought it would be best to have the celebration Saturday night as laboring men would then be at leisure.

Mr. Gillilan was of the same opinion, as he thought it would be a favorable time for people to come down on the railroad and also to come in from the country.

Gen. Sibley said it had been supposed that there would be some celebration during the day, and a proposition had been considered for having the Military participate, but if the celebration was at the evening the troops at the Fort could not very well be used.

A considerable discussion then ensued as to the propriety of having the celebration both in the day and evening. It was finally decided that the celebration should be on Saturday afternoon and evening, and that during the afternoon there should be a military display, firing of salute and speaking. In the evening there will be a torch-light procession in charge of the Fire Department, illuminations, bonfires and a general jubilation.

On motion of Mr. Williams the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That in behalf of the Fire Department, who have charge of the celebration yesterday that a very elegant and costly call on the military to take part in the exercises of the afternoon of said day, and that the public exercises take place in the afternoon at such place as the Committee on Speakers may designate, and that the General commanding this District have full charge of the afternoon procession.

Mr. Ingersoll suggested that business men be requested to close their places of business at noon on Saturday, and that there be a general suspension of labor in the city.

Mr. Allis, from the Committee on Speakers, reported the following list, which they had decided to invite to address the people:

Gov. Miller, Ex-Gov. Gorman, Judge Aaron Goodrich, J. B. Bristle, Esq., Judge S. J. McMillen, Esq., C. C. Merriam, Esq., Capt. Anthony, F. R. C. Merriam, Esq., of Minneapolis, L. Smith, Esq., of Hastings, J. J. Galbraith, Esq., J. M. Gilman, Esq., J. W. Taylor, Esq., and Geo. L. Becker.

On motion of Mr. Ingersoll the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the people of the surrounding counties be invited to join with us in celebrating the capture of Richmond, and that the Committee be authorized to make such arrangements as may be deemed proper for the purpose of procuring the attendance of the military and the people.

The Committee were then instructed to proceed with their work on and the meeting adjourned.

Sword Presentation to Major Brackett.—A lack of space prevented our noting yesterday that a very elegant and costly sword was presented to Maj. A. B. Brackett by his friends, on Monday, at noon, at his rooms in this city. We noticed among the present Hon. Aaron Goodrich, Hon. J. P. Kiddier, Col. J. C. Burbank, John L. Merritt, George A. Brackett and J. M. Ennis, Capt. E. J. Shelly, Major Dyke and many friends of the gallant Major. The sword was a very fine and appropriate presentation address. He referred, in happy language, to the record of the veteran Major, for nearly four years, in the service of his country, at Fort Donelson, at Pittsburgh Landing, at Corinth, and in the long and perilous campaign against the Indians, away over the border.

Maj. Brackett responded in fitting terms, attributing the success of his commands to the bravery of his men, and declaring the beautiful sword a gift of priceless value to him.

The company then drank a toast to the capture of Richmond.

The salute of magnificent flash and very costly. The handle is of ivory and the hilt, rapier, etc., solid gold.

What We May Expect.—Now that Mr. Prince is elected, the following argument, which the Pioneer devoted yesterday morning to excuse the robbery of the Treasury by his police, will be found of interest:

If Mr. Prince should act according to law he might save a large figure, but it is to be hoped that the city can be governed without paying its officers from the wages of licensed prostitution.

This implies two propositions. First, That Mr. Prince does not propose to act according to law; and Second, That under his administration women of the town are to ply their vocation without let or hindrance. As the City Council made a special law on this subject, it is refreshing to know that Mr. Prince does not intend to regard it. We administer the robbery of his organ is stating that he don't propose to "act according to law." He has probably reached that pitch of immorality which enables him to be "a law unto himself."

Lieutenant Colonel.—Mark W. Downie of Stillwater has been appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the First Regiment.

Lieutenant Colonels Jennison and Rogers are spoken of in connection with the Colonization of the Regiment.

THE CITY.

THE CELEBRATION.

Programme for the Day.

Closing of the Business Houses.

In accordance with the action of the meeting on Monday, General Sibley has issued the following order:

HEADQUARTERS, DISTRICT OF MINN.,
St. Paul, April 5, 1865.

In compliance with the invitation of the committee appointed by the citizens of St. Paul to participate in the celebration, on the 5th inst., of the taking of Richmond by the national forces, a procession will be formed on Jackson street, in front of the Union Hotel, at 10 o'clock, and will proceed to the following order:

First—The Governor of the State and Staff, and the President of the Senate.

Second—Officers on duty in this city, and members of the State Guard.

Third—The Military Band of the Second Minnesota Cavalry.

Fourth—Detachments of four companies of the Second Minnesota Cavalry, mounted and armed with sabres, under command of Major A. E. Rice.

Fifth—Detachment of Veteran Cavalry Corps.

It is not known whether the resolution, passed at the meeting of Committees on the 4th inst., contemplating a participation by the citizens in the day procession, but there can be no impropriety in inviting any who are so disposed, to join it. They will follow the military, 1st of foot, 2d on horseback, 3d, in carriages.

The procession will move as follows: Down Jackson street to Third; up Third to Fourth; down Fourth to Washington; down Washington to Seventh; down Seventh to Olive; up Olive to Eighth; up Eighth to Jackson, 3d, in carriages.

The Fire Department held a meeting at Hope Engine house last evening, to make their arrangements for the evening celebration.

Chief Engineer C. H. Williams, E. O. Partridge, foreman of Minneapolis Company; R. A. Kemp, foreman of Hope Company; and J. H. Matthews, foreman of the Hook and Ladder Company, were appointed as a central committee to take charge of the programme.

It was decided to invite the St. Anthony firemen to participate, and the Central Committee were instructed to proceed to St. Anthony and give the invitation in person.

Quite a number of subordinate committees were appointed. The firemen take hold of the matter heartily, and it is safe to guarantee that they will make their part of it a success.

The Department will meet again tomorrow (Friday) evening at the Hook and Ladder house.

It has been suggested to us that all business houses should be closed during the whole of Saturday, instead of the afternoon only, in order to give employees and others, time for a proper decoration of their houses, and to prepare for the grand illumination in the evening.

We think the suggestion a good one, and hope to see it carried out. There are many persons who wish to get up appropriate mottoes, and other decorations, in order to make the route along which the procession will move, as attractive as possible, but will be prevented from doing so unless there is a general suspension of business during the whole day, and thereby give them the forenoon for preparation.

The programme for the procession, which is given above, announces that it will be formed at 1 p. m., the same hour that it has been proposed to close places of business, and this will of course, prevent any extensive decoration or display along the line of march, unless this suggestion is adopted.

The capture of the rebel Capital, the wry heart and life of the rebellion, and the result which it insures, of a speedy termination of the war, is certainly a matter of sufficient importance to warrant Union men in devoting one day in rejoicing together over this glorious achievement. The political heart has not been so propitious as any time since the war began. We can entertain the fond hope now, for the first time, that the end of this bloody strife is near at hand, and that the drooping buds of the coming spring will raise their heads in a land of peace, and their opening petals will emit their fragrance, to be wafted by the passing breeze over a united and happy land. Let Union men, therefore unite together, and devote one day to general rejoicing.

AMERICAN WATCH.

It is made on the best principle, while the foreign watch is generally made upon no principle at all. The foreign watch is mostly made by women and boys, and while their labor is cheap, their work is done at a price. Such watches are made without plan, and sold without guarantee. They are irregular in construction, and give as irregular in movement. They are designed only to sell, and the buyer is the party thoroughly sold. Those who have kept 'accres' 'topical' and 'swiss' have been deceived for a few years will appreciate the truth of our statement.

THE PLAN OF THE AMERICAN WATCH. Instead of being made of several hundred little pieces, screwed together, the body of the American watch is formed of solid plates. No interference with the harmony of its working, and no sudden shock can throw its machinery out of gear. In running, or any business pursuit, it is as solid as a rock, and its single piece of metal. It is just what all machinery should be.

THE ACCURACY, 24. SIMPLE, 24. STRONG, 24. ECONOMICAL.

We not only secure cheapness by our system, but QUALITY. We do not sacrifice quality for cheapness, but we secure quality by our system. Our watch can be bought for less money than the foreign make, and that for its real value. It is sold for one-half the price of the foreign make, and it is sold for its real value. It is sold for its real value, and it is sold for its real value.

OUR LADIES' WATCH. Recently brought in, it is put up in a variety of patterns, and of other of rare beauty and workmanship, is quite small, but warranted to keep TIME.

OUR YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S WATCH. It is not only large, and just the thing for the pocket of Young America.

THE PROOF OF THE AMERICAN WATCH. It is put up in a variety of patterns, and of other of rare beauty and workmanship, is quite small, but warranted to keep TIME.

OUR THREE-QUARTER PLATE WATCH. It is lighter and lighter than the other watches, and it is sold for its real value. It is sold for its real value, and it is sold for its real value.

OUR LADIES' WATCH. Recently brought in, it is put up in a variety of patterns, and of other of rare beauty and workmanship, is quite small, but warranted to keep TIME.
